

REFERENCES

- [1] Horbach, N. (2008). Not Subject to Oblivion: the tragedy of 1932-1933 in the story "Holodomor" by Ye. Hutsal. "Secret. Not for printing." To the 75th anniversary of the Holodomor – the genocide of 1932-1933. Kyiv, 205-214. (in Ukrainian)
- [2] Hundorova, T. (2018). Post-traumatic writing and rhetoric of absence: Bruno Schultz – Georges Perec – Jonathan Foer. Slovo i chas, No. 11, 97-108. (in Ukrainian)
- [3] Kultura. (2014). [za red. T. Hundorova, A. Matusiak]. Kyiv, 26–44. (in Ukrainian)
- [4] Ohienko, V. (2013). The Historical Trauma of the Holodomor: Problem, Hypothesis, and Research Methodology. National and Historical Memory. Issue 6, 145-156. (in Ukrainian)
- [5] Piankova, T. (2022). The age of red ants. Kyiv. (in Ukrainian)
- [6] Pukhonska, O. (2022). Away from the battlefield. Discourse of War in Modern Literature. Brustury. (in Ukrainian)
- [7] The Holodomor of 1932–1933 in Ukraine: documents and materials. (2007). Kyiv, Kyiv-Mohyla Academy Publishing House. (in Ukrainian)
- [8] Tymoshchuk, N. (2005). Anti-totalitarian discourse of Ukrainian prose of the XX century: problems of the Holodomor and peculiarities of its literary realization. Abstract from the Thesis fro Candidate of Philology, Kyiv. (in Ukrainian)
- [9] Vasylenko, V. (2018). Gathering fragments of experience: theoretical (re)conceptualization of trauma. Slovo i chas. No.12, 109-121. (in Ukrainian)